SUMMARY

Inti Raymi Fund visited Georgia and Abkhazia Bridge and provided $29,900 directly into the volunteer team members of CHCA. These funds will be utilized to create projects within their communities. CHCA is a Georgian, non-governmental, non-profit organization which aims to improve the livelihoods of conflict-affected and other socially vulnerable persons, enhancing their social and economic integration in Georgia. CHCA was formed in response to the hundreds of thousands of Georgian Internally Displaced People ("IDP's) created by the violent invasion of Russia into the region of Abkhazia. Since April 2008, over 220,000 registered Internally Displaced People ("IDPs") have been living in limbo in Georgia for more than 20 years. These people fled secessionist conflicts in the two break-away regions of Abkhazia and South Ossetia in the early 1990s. The second wave of displacement swept over Georgia in 2008 as war broke out between Russian and Georgian troops over South Ossetia. According to The UN Refugee Agency ("UNHCR") the majority of those people from Abkhazia live in regions bordering Abkhazia while IDPs from South Ossetia live in Gori, which lies between Tbilisi, and South Ossetia. About 44 % of these IDPs live in state-owned collective centers, which were not constructed to provide long-term accommodation. The remaining IDPs live in the private sector with relatives or friends, in rental properties or have purchased their own homes. The affected people from Russia 'land grab' are over-proportionally represented among the approximately 11.3 % of the population which continues to live below the poverty line. The result of armed confrontation is always human tragedy. After fighting has ended there is a sad record of killings and other losses, of intense suffering, of dreams and hopes that were shattered, in many cases forever. We do not know of any better way to understand the root causes of the Russian-Georgian conflict than through the minds of those who had suffered.

SUMMARY

Inti Raymi Fund visited Northern Nigeria and supported the local non-profit organization of Women's Empowerment for Excellence Initiative or ("EWEI"). EWEI is actively involved with young women's empowerment through educational support, mentorship, micro loans and credits for women entrepreneurs, all with an aim of creating new leaders for the future within the women's communities in Nigeria.

OUR JOURNEY

With an escort of armed guards, the Inti Raymi Fund set out into the infamous "Northern Nigeria" state of Kaduna. We arrived into the city of the same name, which is the fulcrum or pivot point of religious tensions between the Muslim faith to the North and Christian faith to the South. It must be mentioned that these communities live quite harmoniously and respectfully among one another with varying religious preferences; however, it is this region where Boro Haram (Book Haram interpreted meaning: No Western Education) has pledged allegiance with ISIL. In this region, Boko Haram terrorizes with hundreds of hit and run bombings, suicide bombings, burning of dozens of villages and schools, kidnappings of young girls from places of infamy like Chobok. Many famous people such as Michelle Obama along Malala have been vocal with their social media campaigns of #BBOG (Bring Back Our Girls). To-date, Boko Haram campaign has seen an estimated 1,000+ Children abducted, 2,295 teachers killed, 1,400 schools destroyed and upwards of 2 million people displaced according to the Sahara Reporters. The missing girl count is estimated at 100-150 young girls still missing and living with the Boko Haram members reportedly in seclusion in the Sambisa Forest.

During our journey we were fortunate to meet with and financially support a mother and father of one of the unfortunate kidnapped and missing girls from Chibok. This particular family's 17 year old daughter was the oldest of seven children this family has. After this kidnapping, the family was forced to immediately evacuate home and town and start a new life with nothing. Our funds will help them restart their life and support their other six children as they wait in agony to hear something from their missing oldest daughter.

EWEI PROGRAMS

Upon arrival in Abuja, we set out to attend the ongoing Empowering Women for Excellence Initiative ("EWEI") programs in the nearby community. The Inti Raymi Fund had already been introduced to EWEI through our Human Rights Advisor's prior relationships overseas, so we already had a sense of comfort with this excellent woman's and young girls' initiative program. Shortly after the programs, ceremonies and photos were completed, we were whisked off by the armed guards back to our hotel and notified there had been another "Conflict" in a nearby town which had begun to spread towards our township of Kaduna. Immediately upon arrival to our hotel the guards returned to the schoolhouse where they diligently escorted each and every girl and family member back to their homes in safety. We quickly learned that the Religious conflict and riots killed an estimated 55 people with several bodies being brought to our community inciting more retaliatory actions. This news immediately found the governor of the state of Kaduna implementing an immediate "24-hour full state curfew" with no one being able to leave their homes in fear of escalation of violence. News of these riots, lootings and killings made national and international news in press such as this BBC article.

Needless to say, our plans had changed. We simply could not leave our hotel the following day as planned and we were glued to the TV and internet for updated news on any escalations of the conflicts which could be heading towards our village. The following several days yielded several smaller retaliatory acts along with the reported news of rogue persons wearing police uniforms stopping traffic and killing a few people, however, news in this region without internationally recognized journalists for obvious reasons leaves us without the full story.

In the ensuing days, we were able to go into the streets even though there remained the 24-hour curfew since we had 2 heavily armed Nigerian Police escorts. During our community visits we noticed that at almost every single street intersection there were informal tire barricades created with 5-15 local men manning each self-policed checkpoint. These men were holding the most barbaric threatening hand weapons we've ever seen. Oversized machetes, metal shepherds hooks with razor sharp edges strapped to billy-clubs, bats and so forth. They appeared to be ready to defend their neighborhoods from whatever may come barreling down their streets, with no confidence of government support by the Nigerian military or police. We did notice some military troops randomly placed in the communities and guarding main intersections; however, seeing the locals react in this fashion revealed to us that they have seen this before and were prepared.

Navigating through these communities, we were able to visit a number of recipients of EWEI funds for entrepreneurial start-ups, some in the form of grants with others being 0% interest micro-loans. (see our images below). Despite the fact that this was an "adrenaline packed" expedition, it was equally rewarding and satisfying, knowing we were helping many marginalized and oppressed women in one of the most economically challenged places in the world. Additionally, given the added layer of difficulty due to Boko Haram's heavy terrorism in the region, it was rewarding to know we did what we could do to help. After a half day of additional visits we felt it was best to try our luck driving out of this 24-hour military curfew/lockdown city and head back to the capital city of Abuja. After about 45 minutes of zig-zagging through tire blocked intersections and getting police approvals to pass, we finally made it back to the semi-sane capital city of Abuja where we were set to take off to our next Project location in Tunisia. Shortly after escaping the grips of Kaduna, we read that one of the local chiefs had been kidnapped, extorted from then killed which reignited panic and continued 24-hour lockdown, proving to us that our decision to "break the blockade" and escape was a good decision.

SUMMARY

Inti Raymi Fund visited Djibouti and supported eight deserving women living in poverty with funds necessary to start their own businesses which was at their request. These funds will allow each woman to take control of their lives for the first time, allowing them to elevate themselves from poverty giving them Dignity and Respect. This economic advancement will also provide the opportunity for education for themselves as well as their children. With this education, comes awareness of the perverseness of the practice of Female Genital Mutilation. This awareness and empowerment allows each of these women to choose to continue or to stop this tradition rather than have it continue without their consent or ability to change. We believe that financial and educational empowerment is the only real solution to abolishing Female Genital Mutilation.

FEMALE GENITAL MUTILATION

The IRF set out to support the "mostly unknown" human rights issue called Female Genital Mutilation ("FGM"), also known as "cutting". This barbaric removal of an infant or young girls' vaginal clitoris and also often the sewing closed of the vaginal opening is "supposedly performed" to eliminate an adolescents' desire to have premarital intercourse, ensuring her "virginity" to her husband and or to remove her desire to "roam" and have extramarital affairs after marriage.

Much is unknown about the origins of FGM. What we do know is that, depending upon who you ask, it's origins are from Central African states, parts of the Middle East, Islamic beliefs and/or Arabic beliefs.

This procedure is performed by a designated woman called the "cutter" who is either is a community member or family member of the victim. The cutter is assisted by the other female members of the victim's family to hold the victim down and to follow up with post cutting bleeding and trauma. Cutting is usually performed in dirt floor slums with no anesthesia or antibiotics. These victims usually range from 6 months to 10 years of age and experience excruciating pain, shame and suffering and at times death from their continuous bleeding and infections. The cutter may use a shard of glass, piece of metal or razor blade for the clitoris removal and inner labia skin folds removal. In some regions, thorns from trees are used as sutures while the child victim is tied with legs spread apart in their tent or hut, until the vagina grows closed with just less than a 1cm opening for natural feminine discharges.

Description

HOW CAN SOMEONE HELP?

Where do you begin to change the culture and practices surrounding such a taboo subject and practice? Who are we to say this is wrong in another country or within another region or religious area? This practice of cutting is almost always performed by women within the victims' family, usually because "this is what was done to them". Does this make it acceptable? Certainly, the Inti Raymi Fund team of two men were in a very precarious position to help change this practice in the FGM Region.

With the aforementioned issues in mind, the Inti Raymi Fund set out to work with the best-known agency for FGM change in Djibouti. We traveled 36 hours to Djibouti and visited several communities, meeting with over 15 women to discuss extensively this issue which personally affected them, and to listen and respond as effectively as possible. One of the women had her six-month-old daughter die six months after being cut due to continuous bleeding and infections. Her daughter was taken by the grandmother against the mother's knowledge for the procedure at this young age to ensure it would get done! We listened compassionately for hours to these women explaining their stories and listening to how they are trying to change this tradition locally. Often the cutter would quit if they had another source of income. In one case the cutter in one community reportedly quit in exchange for the payment of $300USD used for entrepreneurial seed money.

It was told to us that the women have community gatherings to expand this awareness campaign to stop cutting regionally. Their program reportedly included reaching out to the local Imams, (Islamic leaders) to ensure every measure has been taken to change the paradigm of cutting.

GOING SIDEWAYS

After multiple discussions in 40C+ degree humid heat with flies buzzing all over us, we realized that the numbers and stories were not adding up. Most of this organization's and donors' materials were up to 10 years old, with accounting records inaccurate at best and patient binders from decades of work showing only 10 people per year supported when their verbal accounting revealed a much different story.

Federal Statements

Description

Through these discussions, it was disclosed that almost 100% of women's efforts was "volunteered" time. Don't get us wrong, we are totally in support of as much volunteer time people will give, but these women desperately needed financial support too. These women revealed they often had to pay out of their pockets, the difference between what they received from the NGO compared with the activities' costs. They must take care of their homes, cook meals, and care for their children too. Most important, this agency which is supposedly coordinating these programs is getting millions and millions of International Foreign Aid dollars annually for this "merchandise hot topic" of FGM.

It was disclosed at one community meeting that they only received $2,200USD for 2017 and nothing received as of June 2018. This $2,000 represents less than 1% of this NGO's reported annual donations received from agencies like UNICEF and multiple nation states who try to support the FGM elimination programs. Where is the money going?
THE REALIZATION OF A SCAM

After we became "too smart for our own good" and asked too many questions and knew too much, the dialogue became forced and awkward. The director was yelling, pointing and waving her hands violently at these innocent marginalized and oppressed women volunteers, shutting down and criticizing their painful honest disclosures of what's really going on. We soon realized these community visits were merely just "theatrical dog and pony shows" for potential donors to give more funds if they hear these pathetic stories of FGM and see how these impoverished people live in Djibouti. What we realized is that this dog and pony show has been going on for years under the possible collaboration or at least blind eye of UNICEF employees and other donor agencies. Millions of dollars are donated annually apparently evaporating, without making any visible change to these Peoples' economic livelihoods. Our enlightenment of the ineffectiveness of this NGO's programs came to light when we asked eight women working on FGM issue for years..."If you could have money to use in any way you could choose, what would you spend the money on?" Six of the women said they would use the money to start businesses, one said she would use the money to restart school programs in their community where currently the education is pathetic, and the last woman said she would use it for educational programs for the youth. This discussion tells us that if you leave it up to women, they would want to take care of their own financial matters themselves. It also reveals to us, they would not put their own money into this agencies' FGM programs and initiatives. They don't believe in these programs designed by "others". Don't get us wrong, we are not saying these women don't want FGM to stop, what we are saying is that it is not their "top priority if given a choice and voice". Through economic empowerment and improvement, women become better educated and improve their own lives, allowing them to rise up and change issues like FGM, domestic and sexual abuse. If you truly want to be effective in philanthropy, you must Respectfully listen and respond in an appropriate and Respectful manner, otherwise NGO programs are really just about the agency's agenda.

GETTING SHUT DOWN BY THE NGO

After many meetings, the directors "explicitly" told us we were not allowed to directly support these vulnerable, impoverished and subjugated women in their communities. They demanded that we donate only to their organization which controls all donations, pays grotesquely high salaries and funds the paltry program budgets. They would not allow us to help these communities. "Doing good is a good thing", right is right and anyone with common sense and a willingness to help people in Africa knows that more money into a community the better, unless you are purposefully keeping the recipient controlled for the benefit of yourself.

FLIGHT TO SAFETY

Upon this realization that we were being shut down or worse, we immediately took the next flight out of Djibouti for our safety. It breaks our hearts knowing these wonderful women and children in the communities appear to be exploited for capital gain and that they are not allowed to receive our financial support to better their lives themselves. We honestly fear retribution against these women by the NGO because these women revealed more than they should have only in hope of a better life through our support. As we see time and time again at the IRF, abuse of power and corruption is the leading cause of disparity among the poor marginalized and oppressed People of the world. We fear the worst but hope for the best for these women and children of Djibouti who we cannot help.

WHAT THE INTI RAYMI FUND DID

Due to the politically sensitive nature of this project and our serious concern of retribution against these women we initially met with and tried to help, the Inti Raymi Fund was forced to abandon those women. This required us to locate another group of women in a different community to meet with and support. We did just that. We found a new group of impoverished, deserving women on our own, asking these eight women, "What do You need?" and "How can we help You?". With unanimous vote, each of these women requested cash to start their own enterprises. Their businesses will financially as well as emotionally empower these women and allow them to take charge of their own lives for the first time, giving them Dignity and Respect. Further, with this newfound confidence and financial advancement, education will now be in reach for themselves as well as their children (roughly 5-7 per mother). With education, these women and their daughters in their community will have the independence and backbone to make the difficult but right decision to abandon this barbaric ancient tradition of Female Genital Mutilation. We believe financial and educational empowerment is the only way to stop this insidious practice. We will stay in touch with these precious women to follow their courageous journey.

SUMMARY

Inti Raymi Fund visited Bhutan and provided financial support into the Bhutan based non-profit organization called Tarayana Foundation. Tarayana was founded by Her Majesty The Queen Mother Ashi Dorji Wangmo Wangchuck. Tarayana's directives include 1) community mobilization & volunteering, 2) rural access to health care, remote surgical camps and basic sanitation, 3) facilitating rural tertiary education emphasizing girls, 4) indigenous arts preservation and promotion with micro-credit facilities. Our funds will be used to continue the Royal Family's successes within the 350 communities they support.

KINGDOM OF BHUTAN

If you're looking for "Shangri La", look no further than Bhutan! Upon arrival into the national airport in Paro, Bhutan, we were amazed to experience the most beautiful traditional architecture airport we've ever seen. Immediately, the traditional Bhutanese architecture amazes and embraces you as guests to their country. Friendly faces from baggage handlers to customs agents welcomed us with warm and friendly smiles. One quickly gets a sense of calm, tranquility and happiness upon arriving into this immensely green and mountainous kingdom. Bhutan is truly a magical place with its huge snow-capped Himalayan mountains, colorful Stupas and Temples around every corner, extension foot bridges over rivers and prayer flags flowing in the wind everywhere. A sense of happiness is rooted in the government's decision in 2008 to promote happiness within its constitution which is called the Gross National Happiness index. This is a philosophy that guides the government of Bhutan. This index is used to measure the collective happiness and well-being of their population in contrast to the traditional GDP index of most western societies. Gross National Happiness is instituted as the goal of the government of Bhutan in the Constitution of Bhutan. Bhutan is a gracious kingdom and operates with a style considered Buddhist-socialist. This view of Buddhist-Socialism can be observed nationwide through the gracious acts of kindness, sharing and compassion shown and exemplified by the Bhutanese People. If you are interested in learning more about the broad array of Situated in the Himalayan highlands of Asia and landlocked by India and China, Bhutan is a beautiful forested mountainous Kingdom with only 700,000 people. Indigenous art, clothing, architecture and customs everywhere, reveal a strong sense of national, Buddhist and cultural heritage and pride of the Bhutanese People. At every turn, you'll see the young and old, giggling and smiling. What is it about this country and their big smiles? Although no country is perfect, Bhutan truly strives to provide a good standard of living and well-being for every citizen from the urban to the rural communities alike. This is a far cry from our typical observations with the Inti Raymi Fund's travels, observing many nation's capitals draining and bleeding the natural resources of remote rural communities and never giving back for education, medical or other needs of remote villages.

Some interesting observations we noted include: national funding into regions to promote prosperity including maintenance of temples, stoupas and other religious sites, free education through grade 10, free education post grade 10 upon successful exams, free vocational training for non-university bound students, free university scholarships at Bhutan Universities and/or abroad studies, utility bill subsidies for rural communities, nationwide village road unification programs underway, annual tree planting programs, national forests maintained at 65% of total land area yielding Bhutan as a "net carbon sink" whereby as a nation, Bhutan absorbs roughly 3X the carbon than they emit into the environment.

WHAT THE INTI RAYMI FUND DID:

Inti Raymi Fund pleasantly realized the Kingdom of Bhutan has a very strong social fabric of emotional, spiritual, compassionate and financial support for their people. Further, we honestly believe in the Royal Queen's Tarayana Foundation and their approach. Tarayana Foundation provides Respectful help in rural communities including personal interaction and engagement for the "buy-in" on rural community projects, giving Respect & Dignity to the People. This process is very similar to Our Approach at the Inti Raymi Fund.

In summary, we believe that Tarayana will most effectively utilize our contribution for the service of the Bhutanese People; therefore, we funded their operations directly.

We encourage you to consider supporting the Tarayana Foundation Directly as we did.
